THE LATE DR P. T. MANSON.

The following reference to the late Dr Patrick Thurburn Manson is taken from the British Medical Journal of 22nd

March :--On March 15th, a telegraphic message brought the sad news to London that Patrick Thurburn Manson, eldest son of Dr Patrick Manson, C.M.G., F.R.S., had met with a fatal accident shortly after his arrival at Christmas Island. A commission to investigate scientifically and to report upon Beri-heri was sent to Christmas Island by the London School of No. 1 WELLINGTON ST. Tropical Medicine towards the end of 1901. Dr Durham, one of the members of the Commission, left London in November on his way thither, and Dr P. Thurburn Manson early in January of this year. Dr Manson could only just have reached his destination when the accident occurred.

It is sad at any time to see a young life full of promise suddeply out short, but it is especially sad when the victim, as in this instance, comes forward in the cause of hunumity to risk his life so that disease may be checked. Beri-beri is so virulent a discase, and so wide-spread in the Malayan will leave the Company's Wharf at 8.30 Archipelago, that it claims thousands of victims yearly, and has ruined many commercial enterprises by the havoe it causes amongst the labourers engaged in reclaim-880 ing land from the forest and cultivating it. It was to investigate the nature of this scourge and its possible prophylaxis that the Commission went out, and it was in this noble cause that young Manson lost his life. This is not the first time he proved his I devotion to the cause of science. When his father conceived the notion of testing the transmission of malaria by mosquitos, he wished to do so by allowing mosquitos infected in the Roman Campagna to bite healthy persons in Britain. His son, Dr P. Thurburn Manson, at once offered himself as a subject for experiment, and it will be remembered that the experiment was successful, and thus Dy P. Thurburn Manson became infected with malaria. After finishing his career at Guy's Hospital, Dr P. Thurburn Manson took out a special course of pathology under Professor Humilton, in Aberdeen. He Offices at Victoria, Hongkong.

If the above Call be not paid on or before London, and entered enthusiastically into the study and investigation of tropical diseases. He also devoted himself to clinical work in the wards of the Scamen's Hospital, Albert Dock, and for some time held the post of House-Surgeon in the hospital. Thus equipped, he was in every been paid, an endorsement to that effect way fitted to undertake clinical, pathological and bacteriological wark, and his instincts and desires carried his thoughts to the region of study where his father had acquired 828 lasting fame. By his fellow-students ar Guy's Hospital he was loved and respected, and by the staff of the hospital his abilities were well known. Of fine physique, possessed of mental abilities of a high order, and imbued with a keen outhusiasm for his work, no one ever started life with brighter prospects. His death is a loss to the country and to science. The widest sympathy TAS the honour to inform her friends will be felt with his family in this bereave-

A GOOD COUGH MEDICINE. [From the Gazette, Toottoomba, Australia.] T find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an L excellent medicine.
